National Parks

- There are 15 National Parks in the UK.
- National Parks are protected areas because of their beautiful countryside, wildlife and cultural heritage.
- People live and work in the national parks and the farms, villages and towns are protected along with the landscape and wild life.
- National parks welcome visitors and provide opportunities for everyone to experience, enjoy and learn about their special qualities.
- Agriculture is one of the main land uses in National Parks, so farmers are an important group of landowners.
- A protected area is defined as: 'A clearly defined geographical space, recognized, dedicated and managed, through legal or other effective means, to achieve the long-term conservation of nature with associated ecosystem services and cultural values.' In other words: a location which has a clear boundary. It has people and laws that make sure nature and wildlife are protected and that people can continue to benefit from nature without destroying it.
- Special qualities of National Parks include: landscape and views, geology and geography, biodiversity and rare species and finally archaeology and history.
- The aims of National Parks are laid out in law from the 1949 National Parks and Access to the Countryside Act.
- National Parks seek to foster the economic and social well-being of local communities within the National Parks.
- The Environment Act 1995 set out that National Parks should:
  1. Conserve and enhance beauty wildlife and cultural heritage.
  2. Promote opportunities and enjoyment of the special qualities of national parks by the public

Key words:

- Heritage: something handed down from the past as a tradition.
- Landscape: an expanse of scenery, usually from a single view point.
- Cultural: parts of a civilisation.
- Protected: defended from danger.
- Land use: the way the land is used.
- Agriculture: production of crops, livestock or poultry, farming.
- Conservation: stop it from being destroyed
